Oklahoma City First Sub with New VMS

NORFOLK (NNS) -- USS Oklahoma City (SSN 723) took the next step in technological advances this April, adding the Navy's newest navigational tool to its arsenal.

The Voyage Management System (VMS) -- a combination of digital charts, constant global positioning system fixes, environmental sensors and electronic command and control -- will allow the submarine to eliminate many of the constraining aspects of navigation when using paper charts. ETC (SS) Robert Jacques, Submarine Force assistant navigator, explained VMS will provide greater benefits than paperless navigation.

"VMS will reduce manpower workload by almost 40 percent and it will allow for plans to be utilized at a future date or shared with other units in the same ports," said Jacques.

"The computerized voyage plan safety checker assists the operator in finding hazards to navigate around and the integration of contact data from various sources including BPS-15 Radar, fire control, Automatic Identification System (AIS) onto the electronic chart will allow for easier situational awareness for the contact management process," he continued. The new system will save space, which is a valuable commodity on submarines. All charts are stored on

Annual Elections

Officers are elected at the regular meeting in May each year. If you desire to run for one of these positions: Commander, Vice-Commander, Treasurer or Secretary, please get your nomination to Stan Standrich as soon as possible so your name will be on the ballot!

Terminology Trivia

“Irish Pennant”

A stray or unnecessary piece of line, fabric, or anything else of an untidy appearance. The Navy's insistence on neatness is sometimes irritating to the uninitiated.

Parking at the Fleet

Below is a map to show where parking is allowed at the Fleet Reserve for our meetings.

Basically there is the Fleet parking lot and the streets around it. You can park on both sides of Wisteria Rd. and Gardenia Rd. Gardenia Rd is the street in front of the 84 Lumber.

Just be sure to leave about 3 car lengths in front of stop signs.

"Imagine the entire world's charts in your CD holder," said Jacques.

A wide range of associated publications such as sailing directions and an atlas of pilot charts, normally kept on subs, will also be converted to CDs. The digital nautical charts can be downloaded or ordered from the National Geographical Intelligence Agency (NGA) web site along with other data provided by NGA which add needed bottom contour features necessary for safe navigation.

Capt. Mike Brown, force navigator for Submarine Force, says the many different features VMS offers will be vital to efficient navigation.

"In the past the quartermaster would do all of this work that could take anywhere from 10 minutes or more just to plot our position. By the time you completed that task you would already be 10 minutes beyond that plot. With VMS, it's plotting for you as you are moving along which allows the quartermaster to look ahead more," said Brown.

Brown describes the whole process of VMS much like that of using newer computer software, saying that at first many will be frustrated at the newer technology.

"I would compare it to using Mapquest instead of conventional maps. In the past you would get out your map and physically plan the route you were going to take. These days you can just pull up Mapquest, type in where you want to go and follow the directions given by the computer," said Brown. "It just takes a different way of thinking. I happen to think this way is much easier."

Brown says training is a key factor to get the submarine crews ready for the implementation of the VMS.

"There [are] really two steps to certifying the sub.

Making sure the submarine meets the requirements and training the crew for certification," said Brown.

Training for VMS is well underway said Jacques.

"There is a formal two-week school taught by Submarine Learning Center (SLC) for the VMS operator and a weeklong school for the assistant navigator," he said. "The navigator pipeline school at SLC is also dedicated to VMS operation. Of course there will always be on-board training. It's conducted as part of qualifications as quartermaster of the watch." According to Brown, once the system is installed and the crew is fully trained it's really up to the squadron to clarify it certified for use.

"The process is really given to Fleet Forces Command but they delegate the process down to the Submarine Force. Once the crew is certified the submarine is deemed ready for paperless navigation," said Brown.

Oklahoma City is the first submarine to operate on this version of VMS. USS Cape St. George (CG 71), the first naval vessel to use the system, has been navigating paperless since May 2005.

Brown believes the system could be fully implemented on all submarines by 2009. USS Norfolk (SSN 714) is the next submarine scheduled to implement the

From the District Commander

The combined District 4/6 Convention was held in Daytona Beach, Florida from April 25th to 29th. All who attended from Charleston Base had a great time with all the activities and socials that were occurring. There were in excess of 150 shipmates in attendance. I finally met with John Carcioppolo, the Eastern Region Director. He spoke at the Men's Luncheon and gave feedback from the National Level. In June, I will be attending a ERD conference in Groton, CT. If any members have other issues, other than retention, recruitment and meeting management, I will be happy to take your input. At the D4/D6 Convention, we covered several subjects that all members will be receiving feedback on.
New Business: As will be promulgated during the next regular meeting of Charleston Base, the Eastern Region Director will be soliciting all members that desire to be nominated for District Four Commander. As the National Bylaws read, this position must be elected each year. My last year has been a great learning experience and I will desire to nominate again for another year term. I have enjoyed representing the 12 bases in District Four and am very proud to be part of the Charleston Base!

Worlds Largest Commissary Opens

SAN DIEGO -- The world's largest commissary opened April 20 after a grand opening ceremony at Naval Station San Diego. The new commissary has two entrances, one for the Grab-N-Go shopper and one for the pantry loader. According to Patrick Nixon, director and chief executive officer of the Defense Commissary Agency (DeCA), the new store signals a paradigm shift for commissaries.
"Today, we're all about the health and wellness of our customers," he said. " And San Diego, with its health-minded population, seemed the perfect place to roll out our new health and wellness initiatives."
Produce is the store's signature department, offering an enormous variety of fresh fruit and vegetables -- with a program, and is scheduled to be certified later this year. In May, USS Florida (SSGN 728), in conjunction with Operational Test and Evaluation Force will begin the first phase of testing followed closely by USS Virginia (SSN 774) later in the summer.

Navy Announces Christening of Submarine North Carolina

WASHINGTON -- The Navy's newest attack submarine, North Carolina, was christened Saturday, April 21, during an 11 a.m. EDT ceremony at Northrop Grumman Newport News Shipyard, Newport News, Va. The fourth submarine of the Virginia class, SSN 777 will bear the name North Carolina to honor the Tar Heel State.

The submarine will be the fourth ship of the U.S. Navy to bear the name North Carolina. The first was a 74-gun ship-of-the-line that served from 1820 to 1836. The second North Carolina was a Tennessee-class armored cruiser that was also built at the Newport News shipyard and served from 1908 to 1921. The third North Carolina was the first of the Navy's modern battleships, serving from 1940 to 1947, earning 12 battle stars for service during World War II. The battleship now serves in Wilmington, N.C., as a memorial for all North Carolinians killed in World War II.

Vice Adm. John J. Donnelly, commander, Submarine Force, Atlantic, commander, Submarine Force, Atlantic, commander, Allied Submarine Command, will deliver the ceremony's principal address. Linda Bowman, wife of retired Adm. Frank "Skip" Bowman, former director, Naval Nuclear Reactors, will serve as sponsor of North Carolina. The ceremony will be highlighted by a time-honored Navy tradition when Mrs. Bowman christens the ship by breaking a bottle of champagne over the submarine.

This next-generation attack submarine, the Virginia class, will provide the Navy with the capabilities required to maintain the nation's undersea supremacy well into the 21st century. North Carolina will have improved stealth, sophisticated surveillance capabilities and special warfare enhancements that will enable it to meet the Navy's multi-mission requirements.

Virginia class submarines are able to attack targets ashore with highly accurate Tomahawk cruise missiles and conduct covert long-term surveillance of land areas, littoral waters or other sea-based forces.

Other missions include anti-submarine and anti-ship warfare; special forces delivery and support; and mine delivery and minefield mapping. With enhanced communications connectivity, the submarine also will provide important battle group and joint task force support, with full integration into carrier battle group operations.

Cmdr. Mark E. Davis, a native of upstate New York, will become the ship's first commanding officer and will lead a crew of approximately 134 officers and enlisted special focus on Hispanic and Asian products. Continuing the emphasis on nutrition is the ample and well-stocked health and wellness center, located next to the produce section. A special information kiosk provides customers with science-based information on diet and nutrition. Nearby is a "mini cooking school" where customers can watch cooking demonstrations.

With 75,000 square feet of sales area, the San Diego commissary offers plenty of room to spread out and shop. There is a vast meat and seafood department. The deli and bakery has a special gourmet olive bar. There is even a special self-contained Grab-N-Go store for customers who want to pop in and grab a few necessities.

Die-hard commissary customers know the best reason to shop the commissary is the average savings of 30 percent or more as compared to retail grocery stores.

Eastern Region Districts 4 and 6 Combined Conference
Charleston Base was represented at the conference by several members. The conference was OK, but was nowhere near as fun and successful as the one last year in Charleston. Almost everyone at this year's conference made that same comment over and over again. Imagine the Hospitality Room closing at 1600 on Saturday afternoon!

In addition to the Commander, Vice Commander and COB, attendees included Rick Sparger, Clyde Peters, Bill Roberts, Dave Mueller, Ed Simokat, Beetle Bailey, Jerry Stout, Marvin Miller, Sam Vlam and Jim Williams.

There was a contest for the best ad for the conference booklet. Votes were submitted by attendees and Charleston Base came out on top as the winner, just like we planned!

personnel.

The 7,800-ton North Carolina is being built by Northrop Grumman Newport News Shipyard, and is 337 feet in length, has a beam of 34 feet, and can operate at more than 25 knots submerged. North Carolina is also designed with a reactor plant that will not require refueling during the planned life of the ship-reducing lifecycle costs while increasing operational availability.

Dedication

The City of Hanahan, Mayor, and Council has invited all Submarine Veterans to the dedication of the Uniformed Services Memorial to be held on May 5th at 1000 at 1255 Yeamans Hall Rd. Refreshments will be provided. If you plan to attend please RSVP at 554-4221.

Uniform of the Day will be khaki pants, brown shoes, blue shirt, vest and blue ball caps. If you do not have a vest please come and join us using the above attire.
